Ray Brooks No. 1 Draft Prospect In Tulare Area

Editorial workers on the Tulare Times did not have to go far to interview the No. 1 draft prospect in that city.

They merely entered the advertising office and asked Ray Brooks, former advertising manager of The Herald, how he liked having his number—158—drawn from the lottery bowl in Washington.

Visiting friends here last Sunday, Brooks denied published reports in his own and other nearby newspapers that his first comment was "Yip-pee!"

Instead, he declared it was a typical Brooksonian ejaculation: "Fooyey!" He said he didn't believe it when he was told by watchers of the Tulare newspaper's teletype that his number was the first one plucked from the bowl.

Oil Production Quota for Month Is Fixed At 571,000 Barrels

Recommended daily oil production for California during November was held at 571,000 barrels, the same as that for October, by the Conservation Committee of California Oil Producers at its regular monthly meeting.

Indicating that some relief from the new well problem may be hoped for in 1941, C. G. Williams, chairman of the new well subcommittee, reported that his committee estimated completion of only 637 new wells next year, compared with an estimated 941 wells during the current year.

PEEVED AND PROVOKED . . . Both Melvyn Douglas and Loretta Young look slightly annoyed in this scene from "He Stayed for Breakfast," which starts Saturday at the Plaza theatre in Hawthorne. They have good reasons to be . . . interrupted as they were by Eugene Pallette and Alan Marshal, two gentlemen who don't like Mr. Douglas and do like Miss Young.

IN MEMORIAM . . . Little can be said on the passing of one of our younger schoolmates, Betty Ann Wilson, who passed away last week. But we as a student body express our feelings for those she left behind.

JIVE IT . . . At last we have it! A great Swing Band! For years it has been the ambition of many T.H.S. students to have our own swing band. Now we have it. Stand by it and we may have something better than good. The feature attraction is Bill Wise and his drums. Bill is a new student at Torrance this year.

BOOK WEEK . . . Did you know that from Nov. 10 to 16 is National Book Week? The one week out of a year when we should become conscious of the important part books play in our every day life. In 1919 at the convention of the American Booksellers Association, Frank K. Mathews made such a spectacular speech upon the importance of establishing a National Book Week that the American Library Association supported the plan. This year "Good Books—Good Friends" has been chosen as the theme. Upon analysis you can see how true this is. We can learn how other people of race and color live, and knowledge is friendship. We are truly fortunate to have at our command thousands of books, but how many of us take advantage of them? We all want friends, so let's get smart and read.

Five-Spot Awaits Creator of Best Yule Street Display Idea

Evergreen, tinsel, colored lights, huge candles which may be attached to ornamental light standards—how would you combine them effectively and inexpensively to produce the 1940 Christmas street decorations in Torrance?

Here's your chance to be of community service—and, incidentally win a five-spot for your efforts: The Torrance Business Men's Association is appealing for ideas on how to dress up the business district for the approaching holiday season.

Write out or draw your ideas and send or bring them to The Herald office at 1336 El Prado with your name and address attached. The best idea submitted will win the creator $5 in cash. But remember—this contest closes next Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 12, at 5 o'clock.

Help the Business Men in their plans to make this Christmas a colorful, gay season in Torrance.
